Kendall National Violin Competition announces Erben International Music Festival Fellowship

The Kendall National Violin Competition has announced a partnership with the internationally acclaimed Erben Music Festival which will offer the winner of the 2023 Competition with the opportunity to participate in the performance development program of masterclasses and recitals at the Festival in Munich, Germany. Held annually and directed by Australian violinist Heon Woo Kim, the Erben Music Festival features some of the world's leading performers in performance and masterclasses.

Announcing the Festival Fellowship with the Erben Music Festival, Goetz Richter, Artistic Director and founder of the Kendall National Violin Competition, emphasized the importance of this opportunity for the winner of the competition. "An invitation to the Erben Music Festival as a recitalist and participant in its masterclasses is a great stepping stone for our uniquely talented winner," Richter said. "The vision of the Erben Music Festival forged by Heon Woo Kim aligns wonderfully with the aims of the Kendall National Violin Competition – celebrating the synergy between violin makers and performers and offering young artists opportunities for their performance development. It is an amazing opportunity for the winner of the competition to perform in Europe."

The Erben Music Festival Fellowship will support the winner of the Kendall National Violin Competition to participate in the 2023/24 Erben Music Festival program. Further details will be published on the Kendall National Violin Competition and the Festival's website.
